

The GHEM Fellowship

The Centre for Global Equity in Emergency Medicine (GEM Center) is accepting applications for the GHEM Fellowship program. The fellowship helps emergency medicine clinicians develop the appropriate skills, knowledge and experiences to become leaders in the global health. During the program our fellows are able to develop and implement educational, programmatic and research initiatives, promoting equity amongst various populations around the globe.

Up to two fellows per year are selected and each fellow can choose a curated, interest-driven curriculum which includes 1/3 field work, 1/3 education & research, and 1/3 clinical work at our home institution (University Health Network). Fellows can choose to complete this fellowship in 1 or 2 years, based on prior experiences and educational achievements and can choose to amalgamate their global health focus with another topic, including but not limited to: system development, POCUS, trauma, disaster/humanitarian relief, innovation, research, pre-hospital care and emergency medicine training.
